Project Title: United States Senate Website

1. Project Overview

The goal of my website is to show the history, structure, and responsibilities of the United States Senate. I want to make the Senate easier to understand by breaking down complicated political processes into simpler sections in a visually engaging way.

2. Resources

The wiki article is found here: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/United_States_Senate, along with some photographs and historical information. Additional images can be found in adobe stock or online governmental websites.

4. Audience

I plant to make this website more bi-partisan and informational, but also reveal how politicians abuse our senate system. The primary audience will be students, educators, and people interested in learning more about the American government.

5. Message

I want to communicate the importance of the Senate within the American political system. The Senate has a significant role in shaping legislation, confirming government officials, and representing the states. I also want to highlight how the Senate has changed throughout American history while maintaining many of its original traditions and responsibilities.

6. Tone

The tone should be historical and informative.. I want the website to reflect the seriousness and importance of the institution without feeling overly formal or difficult to understand.

8. Visual Style

I want the website to have a clean, modern design inspired by traditional American government documents and newspapers. I am leaning toward a color palette of navy blue, off-white, and muted red to reference American political imagery without making the website feel overly patriotic. Large serif headings could give the website a historical and authoritative appearance, while simpler fonts for the body text would keep everything readable. I would also like to incorporate photographs of the Capitol and Senate chamber, historical images, and simple graphics.
